DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments filed 4/29/09 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Regarding applicant's added limitation to claim 20, specifically the portion "using at least one of the speech communication and text communication" does not overcome the Chen reference. Specifically wherein Chen mentions in Col.5 lines 9-14 that the user is informed either thru a voice alert, alphanumeric text, or a combination of both.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 20-23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Chen (European Patent Application # 859,500) in view Appelt et al (US 2003/0078766) in view of Roeseler et al (US 6,317,684)

Regarding claims 20 and 22 Chen teaches a system, comprising a center having a speech communication and text communication function; and a portable terminal wherein said portable terminal comprises sending means for sending a speech signal to said center by said speech communication during execution of said text communication with said center; and wherein said center comprises: receiving means for receiving said speech signal (column 2, lines 29 - 38 and column 4, lines 54 - 58); searching means for searching for information based on said speech signal; and sending means for sending said information to said portable terminal using at least one of the speech communication and text communication (Chen: column 5, lines 14 -35).

Chen teaches all of the above limitations but fails to specifically disclose execution of information search using the text communication with the center. However, in the related search art, Appelt teaches a speech recognition engine adapted to convert user speech to the natural language query and a text to speech engine adapted to convert the result of the search to speech recognition of spoken language (§ 0014 and 0097).

The Roeseler reference Fig.5 teaches a call process wherein the user can get a text description of the driving descriptions during a phone call 530. (Col.8 line 30-45)

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to combine Appelt text to speech searching methods and the simultaneous texting during a speech operation of Lau with Chen's existing searching method in order to allow Chen to utilize the speech communication to do a text search and therefore reduce system resources by only utilizing one communication.

Regarding claims 21 and 23, Chen teaches said text communication is performed by packet communication (Chen: Figure 2 and "column 4, lines 44 - 58).

Allowable Subject Matter

4. Claims 1-10, 12-19, and 24-36 are allowed.
